The YWCA Family Tree – Strong Foundation, Fearless Future

On March 24, 2013, as the YWCA Central Alabama celebrates its 110th birthday, we can't pass up the opportunity to reflect on the impact that this organization has had in the greater Birmingham community for more than a century. We invite you to journey with us as we take a nostalgic look at our YWCA “family tree” and join with us in celebrating our theme for the occasion – “Strong Foundation, Fearless Future.”

Our roots go back to Maybelle Sloss and her Sunday School class in 1903 when each member committed to raise $100 annually to support the YWCA as it fulfilled its mission to give “hundreds of noble working girls influences which will keep them sweet and womanly in adverse circumstances.” Our roots also go back to 1912 when the 8th Avenue Branch was established with over 800 members to provide recreational and vocational programs to the black women and girls in our community.

Over the years the YWCA family tree grew straight and tall because of the long term commitments of individuals, families and organizations in our community that supported its mission and invested in its programs. Courageous individuals, on our Board and in the community, helped this organization weather turbulent racial times in the 1960s and 1970s and pressure in the 1970s to move the facility out of downtown Birmingham to the suburbs. Thanks to strong leadership and commitment by both black and white women, by the end of the 1970s we had a stronger organization that chose to remain in downtown Birmingham and serve all of our citizens.

Today our tree continues to grow straight and tall due to the commitment of our Board and Junior Board members, our dedicated staff, our hundreds of energetic volunteers and the many organizations that support us every single day.

The branches of our family tree are represented by our programs, which are many and varied. Housing was the very first “branch” on our YW family tree and 110 years later is it still one of our strongest branches. In the 1980s we grew new branches on our tree – a child care program for low income families (1984), a shelter for women and children who were victims of domestic violence (1986), transitional housing for families who were leaving emergency housing and moving toward self-sufficiency (1987) and a child care program for homeless children living in area shelters (1989). In the 1990s, we added more housing units and established counseling, legal and support services for all of our clients. The new century gave us the opportunity to add social justice programs as another branch to our family tree.

A tree with deep roots, a strong trunk and healthy branches is not complete without producing lush foliage, beautiful blossoms or fabulous fruit. At the YWCA our foliage, our blossoms, our fruit are the lives we touch and the women, children and families whom we serve. The “Program Statistics” page in this annual report will tell you how much we did and how many we served. What it cannot tell you is how lives were changed because we were there.

We thank you for providing that “strong foundation” that brought us to this day and time and we thank you for your commitment to walk with us into our “fearless future.”
